Lackawanna Clean Energy Retains e3communications for Public Relations Services

BUFFALO, NEW YORK – e3communications today announced that the agency has been retained by Lackawanna Clean Energy (LCE) to provide public relations services.

LCE is a proposed gasification plant that would be constructed on the former coke ovens formerly operated by Bethlehem Steel. The site is among the most contaminated brownfields in New York State.

With offices in Buffalo and Albany, e3communications is a full service public relations and public affairs agency that provides clients with various public relations services, including issues management, media training, crisis communications as well as government affairs services.
